Accounts, Core Education

Discussing how healthcare systems can grow talent by building school partnerships, reaching new job seekers, and upskilling current employees.

 Healthcare systems can strengthen their workforce by partnering with schools to introduce students early to healthcare careers and create accessible training pathways, such as Allied Health certificates. Attract new talent through social media and job sites while upskilling current employees to support career growth and improve retention.

 Recommended Audience:
CHRO, Talent Acquisition, Workforce Development Leaders, Allied Health Department Leadership

 Key Takeaways:

- Ideas on how to build awareness of Healthcare careers to a younger audience
- The value of building a completely connected pathway from High School to the Healthcare system
- The ability to scale a talent pipeline more quickly by targeting non-traditional candidates
